I. GENERAL

The Jawaharlal Nehru University constituted under the Jawaharlal Nehru University Act 1966, (53 of 1966) came into existence in 1969. Its objectives, as defined in the First Schedule of the Act, are as follows:

"The University shall endeavour to promote the principles for which Jawaharlal Nehru worked during his life-time, national integration, social justice, secularism, democratic way of life, international understanding and scientific approach to the problems of society.

Towards this end, the University shall:

- (i) foster the composite culture of India and establish such departments or institutions as may be required for the study and development of the languages, arts and culture of India;
- (ii) take special measures to facilitate students and teachers from all over India to join the University and participate in its academic programmes;
- (iii) promote in the students and teachers an awareness and understanding of the social needs of the country and prepare them for fulfilling such needs;
- (iv) make special provision for integrated courses in humanities, science and technology in the educational programmes of the University;
- (v) take appropriate measures for promoting inter-disciplinary studies in the University;
- (vi) establish such departments or institutions as may be necessary for the study of languages, literature and life of foreign countries with a view to inculcating in the students a world perspective and international understanding;
- (vii) provide facilities for students and teachers from other countries to participate in the academic programmes and life of the University."

In the light of the above, the approach of the University has been to evolve policies and programmes which will make Jawaharlal Nehru University a distinct addition to the national resources in higher education rather than a mere quantitative expansion of facilities which already exist. The University has identified and is concentrating upon some major academic programmes, which are of relevance to national progress and development.

The basic academic units of the University are not single discipline departments but multi-disciplinary Schools of Studies. A School has been visualised as a community of scholars from disciplines which are linked with each other organically in terms of their subject-matter and methodology as well as in terms of problem areas. Some Schools are made up of a number of Centres which constitute the units operating within the broad framework of a School. A Centre has been defined as a community of scholars irrespective of their disciplines engaged in clearly identified inter-disciplinary programmes of research and teaching.

Unless otherwise specified, the JNU being an all India University, the medium of instruction for all programmes of study (barring Languages) is English.

In order, however, to facilitate students coming from varying backgrounds with medium of instruction other than English at their Bachelor's/Master's level, the University has in-built facilities for remedial courses in English Language in order to enable them to strengthen their foundation in English as well as to cope up with their academic and research programmes adequately.

The University includes the following Schools of inter-disciplinary research and teaching besides some Special Centres of Study:

- (i) School of International Studies
- (ii) School of Language, Literature and Culture Studies
- (iii) School of Social Sciences
- (iv) School of Arts and Aesthetics

II. SCHOOL AND THEIR PROGRAMME OF STUDY

1. SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Established in 1955, the School of International Studies is the oldest School of the University. The School has established itself as one of the premier institutions in the country for the study of international relations and area studies. The School has made pioneering contributions in promoting the study of international relations as an academic discipline in India and in advancing knowledge and understanding of international affairs in an interdisciplinary perspective. The School is also the first institution in the country to promote "Area Studies" and to develop expertise on various countries and regions of the world. It has also acquired an international reputation as a centre of advanced learning.

To begin with, the School was affiliated to the University of Delhi as the Indian School of International Studies. From September 1961 till the School merged with Jawaharlal Nehru University in June 1970, it functioned as a deemed university. Following the merger, the prefix "Indian" was dropped from the name of the School and it became the School of International Studies of the Jawaharlal Nehru University.

For a long time, the academic programmes of the School focused exclusively on research only awarding Ph.D. degree. Soon after the School became a part of the Jawaharlal Nehru University, the M.Phil. curriculum was introduced in 1971-72. In the following academic year 1973-74, the School started offering a 2 year M.A. (Politics: International Studies) programme. A new and unique M.A. programme in Economics (with specialization in World Economy) was introduced in 1995-96 by the Economics Division of the Centre for International Trade and Development. The School has introduced a new two year M.A. Programme (International Relations and Area Studies) with specialization on area studies and contemporary international developments.

Presently, there are more than 100 faculty members in the School. It also has Emeritus Professors and distinguished scholars. Several Chairs have been instituted in the School in the recent years. These are Appadorai Chair, Nelson Mandela Chair, State Bank of India Chair and Jawaharlal Nehru Chair in International Environmental Law. Members of the faculty of the School have contributed to the advancement and dissemination of knowledge in International Studies not only through their teaching and research supervision but also by publishing books and articles in journals of highest international repute.

The School holds national and international seminars from time to time on important aspects of area studies, inter-country relations and on themes relating to the study of international relations as an academic discipline.

The School also holds a series of Hriday Nath Kunzru Memorial (Extension) Lectures every year on a theme relating to contemporary international relations. Under an endowment funded by Asia Publishing House, Bombay, it also holds lectures in memory of the great poet and patriot, Sarojini Naidu and invites a distinguished scholar or statesman to deliver the memorial lecture.

The School publishes a quarterly journal "International Studies". Founded in July 1959, this journal has acquired world-wide reputation as a leading Indian academic journal in the field.

(ix) Centre for Indo-Pacific Studies

The Centre for Indo-Pacific Studies (CIPS) is a new Centre created in 2013 keeping in view the profound shifts that are taking place around India and India's rapidly rising stakes in the Indian Ocean and East Asia. Equally, it is also a reflection of today's geopolitical realities. The Indo-Pacific as a region is emerging as the new template of reference since the confluence, interdependence and interface of the Indian and Pacific Oceans are getting strengthened not merely economically but geostrategically as well. The Indo-Pacific, comprising a vast spatial continuum spread from the Indian Ocean all the way up to West Pacific, including the crucial regions such as Southeast Asia and South Pacific, also brings forth India's centrality and its relationship with regions in the Indo-Pacific quite distinctly.

Centre's focus are Southeast Asia, the South Pacific and the Indian Ocean. First of its kind anywhere in the world, CIPS's intent is to break new ground by focusing its research and teaching on new frontiers of knowledge and bring out newer dimensions of a rapidly changing world. The programme is supported by competent and dedicated team of faculty committed to high quality teaching and research. Plans are afoot to expand and develop it into a leading Centre of academic excellence.

2. SCHOOL OF LANGUAGE, LITERATURE AND CULTURE STUDIES

In the age of globalization, the effective use of language ensures the success of any venture or endeavour, including forming alliances and partnerships at the national and international levels. Against this background, the significance of learning languages has increased manifold. Not only do we use language for expressing and exchanging our thoughts and ideas but it also helps us in understanding and appreciating the culture, tradition and customs of other societies. Hence, learning a language in addition to one's own mother tongue provides an informed and nuanced access to the literature, culture and civilization of the country in which the language is rooted. The School of Language, Literature and Culture Studies (SLL&CS) in Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU) was set up with this objective of instilling a spirit of critical engagements with the concerned culture.

The School of Language, Literature and Culture Studies (SLL&CS) is not only one of the largest Schools of the university but also is a pioneer and premier institution in the country which offers teaching and research in major foreign languages, literature and culture studies. The School has 12 Centres namely, Centre for Arabic and African Studies, Centre for Chinese and South-East Asian Studies, Centre for English Studies, Centre for French and Francophone Studies, Centre of German Studies, Centre for Indian Languages, Centre for Japanese Studies, Centre for Korean Studies, Centre for Linguistics, Centre for Persian and Central Asian Studies, Centre of Russian Studies and Centre of Spanish, Portuguese, Italian and Latin American Studies.

(B) CENTRES OF THE SCHOOL*1. Centre of Persian and Central Asian Studies

The Centre of Persian & Central Asian Studies in Jawaharlal Nehru University was established on the 7th of January 1971 as part of the Centre for Afro-Asian Languages (CAAL). It soon emerged as a prominent seat of Modern Persian Studies all over India. The Persian world at large began to appreciate the language teaching programs of the Centre which was unique of its kind in India. The Cultural Foundation of Iran (Bonyad-e-Farhang) took keen interest in the academic development of the Centre and provided it with language laboratory. This was the only University having the facility of language lab for learning Persian in India. Keeping the national character in view, JNU allows teachers and students of other universities to formally avail themselves of the service of the lab during vacations. ### 3. SCHOOL OF LIFE SCIENCES

BRIEF HISTORY AND PROFILE

The School of Life Sciences (SLS) established in the year 1970 and has just celebrated its Golden Jubilee year.

The School offers M. Sc. and Ph.D. degree in Life Sciences. The teaching and research programmes in the School was conceptualized as an interdisciplinary program unifying the disciplines of biological sciences from a molecular level to whole organismal level. The experimental approaches undertaken by different research groups include biochemistry, biophysics, cell biology, genetics and molecular biology in organisms representing viruses, bacteria, fungi, plants and mammals.

The teaching programme of the School of Life Sciences has earned a high reputation for its interdisciplinary nature for students from both biological and physical sciences at the Master's and Ph.D. levels. This is made possible by offering remedial courses in physical sciences for Master's students coming from the bioscience stream and in elementary biology for students entering biology after their first degree in physical sciences. The School has an in-house system of continuous review of its academic programmes that allows inclusion of newer areas into research and teaching. The M.Sc. practical laboratories are well equipped to give 'hands-on' training to students in the theory subjects taught to them. Graduates completing their degrees at the School are always sought after by research labs in India and abroad and have performed exceptionally well in the universities, institutes and industries.

HIGHLIGHTS OF OUR TEACHING PROGRAMME

- Molecular, cellular and organismal biology with emphasis on a holistic understanding of the mechanisms operating in living systems

ADMISSION PROCEDURE*Ph. D (Life Sciences)

Students would be admitted into the Ph.D. programme into one of the five research groups (see Table below). Key Features of this change:

- Each candidate has to indicate their choice of any two of the five research areas (where vacancies are available) in order of their priority in the application form.
- The entrance exam question paper would cover all aspects of Life Sciences.
- Based on the performance in the entrance test, students will be shortlisted group-wise for viva-voce/interview.
- Eligible candidates would be interviewed by a competent interview board on the basis of their choice of research areas indicated in the application form.
- Separate merit list will be prepared for admission to each group and candidates would be offered admission accordingly.

Instructions for the Candidates short-listed for interview

Details of instructions for ONLINE interview will be available on SLS website. Before the interview, Short-listed candidates are instructed to visit school website and prepare accordingly.

Key Aspects of SLS Ph.D. Program

- There would be an orientation session in the form of faculty colloquium, following which students would be offered a list of vacant seats available with individual faculty members in the chosen research group, and supervisor/laboratory would be assigned thereafter.
- Each student during their tenure in the SLS would be assigned to a Research Advisory Committee (RAC).
- For confirmation into the Ph. D. programme, a student has to secure the required qualifying marks. The student, in consultation with the respective Ph.D supervisor, has to submit a synopsis of the research proposal and defend it in an open seminar in the RAC. Upon acceptance by the RAC, the Special Committee of the School would approve the enrollment of the student into the Ph. D. programme.
- There would be a six-monthly assessment of progress of each student by the RAC every semester.
- After sufficient amount of research work has been carried out by the student and with due approval of the RAC, each student would make a presentation in an open seminar detailing their research work, and would become eligible to submit their Ph. D. thesis. Although Ph. D. thesis can be submitted upon completion of at least 2 years of research work, normally it is between 2 to 4 years from the date of confirmation for the Ph. D. program.
- A student may apply for an extension for up to four semesters to submit the Ph. D. thesis, provided the research work has been examined and recommended by the RAC.

Lab Allotment:

- After new students complete the registration for admission, students will be offered a list of positions/vacancies available with individual faculty members in the respective research groups of the School as per their admission. To orient new students to the ongoing research, the SLS faculty members would highlight their research in a colloquium soon after the completion of the admission process.
- Thereafter, students are required to interact with the faculty members of the concerned group to discuss and decide on joining a laboratory. Mutual consent would be required for the final choice of laboratory. The graduate advisory committee (GAC) will provide an allotment form, which will require the signatures of the student and supervisor. The GAC will formally designate a supervisor for each student, and the list will be displayed.
- It is expected that by following the criteria/procedure given above, every student will get a supervisor. However, in case a student can not find a supervisor within the stipulated time given, the GAC will allot a supervisor from the vacancies available in the research group to which the student has taken admission, for that academic year. It is expected that no student will continue without being allotted a supervisor i.e. beyond 15 days from the date of issue of supervisor allotment form by the GAC.
- The student has to submit a Ph.D. synopsis within two semesters after course work, which needs to be approved by the concerned research advisory committee (RAC). Two years of residency would start from the approval of the synopsis.
- A change of supervisor is highly discouraged in SLS. Before joining a lab, students should ensure that the areas of research and the lab of their choice is in synchrony with his/her interest. The lab allotted by GAC is final, and no change will be entertained. However, in certain exceptional cases, supervisor may be changed with the consent of the student, the supervisor, and on the recommendation of the research advisory committee (RAC), before submission of the Ph.D. synopsis and before confirmation to Ph D programme. The new supervisor must be from the same research group and have a vacant seat in the year of admission of the student. However, the total number of Ph D students of the new supervisor should not exceed the maximum limit as per UGC/JNU guidelines, at the time of seeking change. It is important to note that supervisor change is subject to the approval of the competent authority of the University. Once the thesis synopsis is submitted, no change of supervisor will be allowed.

Unfilled vacancies (laboratory wise) of the monsoon semester will be filled up through interview of JRF category before the winter semester begins. Fresh applications will be invited and students will be admitted for winter semester (2023-24).

The Ph. D. degree is awarded on the basis of evaluation and recommendation of the thesis by examiners and successful oral defense of the research work by the candidate after fulfilling due requirements as per UGC regulations.

RESEARCH GROUPS IN THE SCHOOL OF LIFE SCIENCES

Research in the School of Life Sciences is organized into five thematic research areas. Candidates should indicate their choices for Two research areas in the order of their preference in the application form. Each faculty member is listed alongside one Research Group. ## (B) CENTRES OF THE SCHOOL

1. Centre for Economic Studies and Planning

The Centre has established itself as a premier institution for teaching and research in Economics, and has been recognized by the UGC as a Centre for Advanced Studies. The richness of the teaching and research programmes is reflected in the structure of the courses and the research output of faculty and research scholars. The faculty has a distinguished record of publications of books, monographs and articles, as well as outreach through more accessible articles in the popular media.

The Centre strives to ensure that the faculty is easily accessible to the students. The pedagogic emphasis is on analysis, understanding and learning, rather than on memorizing. Students have to write term papers, make presentations, solve problems, appear in open book examinations, etc. as part of a continuous evaluation process.

Admission to the Ph.D. programme

A very limited number of scholars are admitted to the Ph.D. programme.

For more details about the Centre, visit the JNU website : <https://www.jnu.ac.in/sss/cesp>

2. Centre for Historical Studies

Recognised as a Centre for Advanced Studies by the UGC, The Centre for Historical Studies is a premier centre of teaching and research in history. It is also one of the oldest centres in the School of Social Sciences having launched its programme of Post Graduate Studies in 1970 under the guidance of eminent historians such as Professors S. Gopal, Romila Thapar, Bipan Chandra and Satish Chandra. A major focus of the is cutting-edge research that can expand the frontiers of the discipline.

Admission to Ph.D. programme

The Centre focuses its teaching and research on Ancient, Medieval, Modern and Contemporary History with particular emphasis on the study of economic, social and cultural changes. Students who learn to handle different types of source material are encouraged to work on themes that cut across these chronological divides.

Ancient History: Emphasis is placed on training students in different disciplines: archaeology, text studies, languages, epigraphy, and numismatics. In particular, study and research on the following are encouraged: evolution of social structure, gender and sexuality, political process, agrarian relations, art and architecture, urbanization, trade, religion, philosophy, literary culture, intellectual history, cultural history, historical geography.

Medieval History: study and research includes structure and change in medieval Indian society, state systems, agrarian development, growth of trade and commerce, ideology and culture. Emphasis is also given to the study of two major transitions in Indian History—from ancient to medieval and from medieval to colonial regimes, through a reconstruction of structural continuities and cleavages encompassing the institutional, technological, social, economic and ideological development.

Modern History: Apart from the study of social changes and evolution of agrarian, industrial and class structures, emphasis is placed on the study of colonialism in its economic, political and cultural dimensions, nationalism and the national movement, peasant, trade union and tribal movements, the growth of left-wing parties and groups and developments in the cultural, intellectual and ideological fields.

The focus is on the study of colonial and contemporary studies. Themes include: colonialism and nationalism, capitalism, state and law; labour and gender history, economic and social history, cultural and intellectual history, legal and environmental history; histories of peasant and tribal societies, histories of castes and communities, histories of domination and subordination; comparative perspectives on Asia, Africa and Europe.

Contemporary History: In this field an effort is made to situate the evolution of contemporary developments, particularly those since World War II, in a long term historical context. Special attention is given to studying the linkages between different aspects of contemporary society viz., the economy, polity, culture, environment, etc., in a holistic manner, i.e. not compartmentalised into the relatively strict boundaries of disciplines such as political science, economics or sociology. Also, an attempt is made to conduct the above studies in a comparative perspective, taking into account the experience of different countries.

At the time of the viva-voce, Ph.D. candidates should come with 1000 word synopsis of their research proposal (six copies). In the interview, they will be asked questions regarding their proposal, primary sources and some of the key books read by them in their M.A. course. They will also be a discussion with the candidate about research aptitude.

Candidates applying for Ph.D. (History) programme are allowed to exercise only one option, i.e., Ancient History; or Medieval History; or Modern Indian History, and the option so exercised must be clearly mentioned in the appropriate column in the Application Form.

Candidates who qualify should register at the earliest so that they can take full advantage of the tutorial and seminar system. Classes normally begin as per the academic calendar. Students are required to check with the CHS office for specific dates. Students are also requested to attend the Orientation Meeting with the Faculty. This will introduce them to the structure of courses, the system of evaluation and the rules and norms of the Centre. The date of this meeting will be put up on the notice board of the Centre by the first week of August.

For more details about the Centre, visit the JNU website : <https://www.jnu.ac.in/sss/chs>

3. Centre for Political Studies

The Centre is recognized as a premier centre for teaching and research in Political Science. Students who have graduated from the Centre are holding important positions in academic institutions and other walks of public life all over the world. The faculty members have a distinguished record of publications of books and articles in important national and international journals. The Centre offers two programmes of study- MA. and Ph.D. The teaching and research work of the Centre covers four broad sub-fields in the discipline of Political Science. They are: (1) Political Philosophy and History of Ideas; (2) Indian Government, Politics, Institutions and Public Policy; (3) Comparative Politics and International Relations; and (4) Methods of Political Analysis

Admission to Ph.D. programme:

The Centre for Political Studies offers admission to Ph.D. programme in the four core areas of research mentioned above. Those who wish to apply for a research degree are expected to have a strong, detailed and well- developed research proposal for a thesis that can be supervised in the Centre. In addition to the fulfillment of admission requirements, the applicants need to approach the subject with rigor and appropriate knowledge of the field. The candidates must submit their research proposals after qualifying the entrance examination and before appearing for viva voce in the Ph. D programme. The candidates admitted to the Ph.D. programme will be required to complete the prescribed course work in the first year.

4. Centre for the Study of Regional Development

The Centre for the Study of Regional Development came into existence in the year 1971 with the mandate of evolving an interdisciplinary teaching and research programs with a focus on the issues of regional development in India. This is one of the largest Centres in the School of Social Sciences, offering postgraduate degree programs in Geography, PhD research programs on diverse issues of regional development within the interdisciplinary framework.

Admission to Ph.D. Programme

A limited number of scholars are admitted to the PhD Programme

For more details about the Centre, visit the JNU website : <https://www.jnu.ac.in/sss/csrd>

5. Centre of Social Medicine & Community Health

The Centre of Social Medicine and Community Health (CSMCH) was established in order to shape and provide academic content to the discipline of public health, making it relevant to the situation in India. It was recognised that the discipline of Preventive and Social Medicine needed a paradigm shift that could only be provided if this Centre was set up outside the confines of a medical college.

Over the last five decades, the Centre has acquired vast experience in evolving problem-oriented interdisciplinary academic programmes in public health, in addition to building an active research base. At the same time, efforts have also been made at establishing institutional links with various academic, research, policy-making and non-governmental organisations.

Under the overall objective of creating academic programmes for making health services meaningful to the people of the country, the Centre has set out as its objective the task of understanding the health problems and health needs of the Indian people. The endeavour is to understand how health problems are shaped by socio-economic factors and to examine the social structure itself, to delineate the structural constraints that contour the scope of health interventions. The task requires an inter-disciplinary approach involving disciplines such as sociology, anthropology, psychology, economics, history, political science, demography, statistics and public administration, apart from the disciplines that are traditionally included in public health. It was for this reason that the Centre was located in the School of Social Sciences. Epidemiology, health service structure, health programme design, health systems research and health policy analysis are important foci for all the programmes.

The Centre offers the following academic programmes:

1. Ph.D. in Social Sciences in Health.
2. Ph.D. in Public Health

The above programmes, the Centre also admits candidates to the Ph.D. programme as per criteria mentioned in the eligibility column. The Centre may prescribe courses to the candidates admitted under the Ph.D. programme.

Courses in public health cover areas such as organization of health programmes, epidemiology, nutrition, maternal and child health, communicable diseases, family planning, research methodology, operations research etc. Courses in social sciences cover concepts perspectives and methods relevant for public health within an interdisciplinary perspective.

During the second semester students are offered a number of optional courses. They also get an opportunity to familiarise themselves with the current issues in public health through an intensive journal club. All students are exposed to group field work in both urban and rural areas as a part of their course work.

For more details about the Centre, visit the JNU website : <https://www.jnu.ac.in/sss/csmch>

6. Centre for the Study of Social Systems

The Centre is recognized as a premier centre for teaching and research in Sociology. This Centre has been ranked among the top 55 best departments in the world for sociology in 2017-18 by QS World Rankings. Students who have graduated from the Centre have distinguished themselves in all walks of public life. Our alumni are present in most leading institutions of higher education and research nationally and globally. Our faculty members have made their mark in the broader world of social sciences with a distinctive intellectual orientation and an illustrious record of publications.

Since its inception in 1971, the Centre has developed a distinctive approach to sociology both in terms of a plurality of theoretical and methodological orientations as well as in a variety of substantive fields of empirical enquiry. Equal focus is therefore given on the teaching of qualitative and quantitative methods on the one hand and on philosophy of methods on the other. From its very inception both teaching and research in our Centre have shown an engagement with pressing questions of development and marginalization, social movement and social justice. The CSSS is recognized as a Centre for Advanced Studies in the discipline of sociology by the UGC.

The Centre aims to provide a strong platform for philosophical training and offer opportunities for pursuing cutting edge research in new philosophical areas, over and above the existing ones.

The academic programmes of the Centre are intended to provide students with a deeper knowledge and rigorous foundation in the discipline while simultaneously encouraging students to be committed to thinking critically about the problems of our contemporary society. The teaching and research works are designed to educate students to read and engage with original philosophical texts, both classical and modern (Indian and Western), with a high degree of methodological awareness. Through our programmes we allow, inspire, and train our students to delve into the philosophical issues of diverse traditions and multi-disciplinary areas. In short, we provide educational training that helps students to philosophically think about everything that surrounds them in their everyday world of experience.

9. Zakir Husain Centre for Educational Studies (ZHCES)

The Centre focuses on the study of education from social science perspectives. Orientation in teaching and research programmes are structured around social science disciplines of Economics, History, Psychology and Sociology. Accordingly, there are four streams of research. The Centre currently offers a programme of study leading to the degree of Ph.D in Economics of Education, History of Education, Psychology of Education and Sociology of Education.

Psychology of Education: The co-constitutive nature of cultural-historical processes and the psychological phenomena is problematized. The existing theoretical traditions within Psychology and their transformative roles in bringing about changes in the educational processes are examined. Areas such as cultural roots of learning with specific emphasis on language and mathematics learning, everyday and scientific cognition, Meta-reflexive capacities, theory of mind, reflexive pedagogy, personality, motivation, social cognition, inter-group dynamics and identity processes, etc. and their implications for curricular and pedagogic practices in a multicultural-multilingual society are analyzed.

Sociology of Education: Special emphasis is placed on issues relating to diversity, equity and social justice, structure and processes of schooling and higher education, social and educational policy, social impact of globalization and privatization of the educational systems, and other contemporary concerns of education in the 'developing' world. Interface among and between technology, urban and education too constitute an emerging research concern within sociology of education at the Centre. Basic concepts and approaches in sociology, linkages of education with socialization, stratification, social change and mobility, social and educational inequality, etc. are some of the areas discussed from multiple critical theoretical standpoints available in the discipline of sociology and sociology of education. Classroom teaching focuses on a comparative analysis of diverse social contexts within India and also other countries.

History of Education: The research programme in the history of education at the Centre has evolved into three distinct areas. The first one deals with the growth of modern schools, access to these schools in terms of gender and caste, the emergence of the system of state and private funding, curriculum, text books and educational debates during the British rule in India. The second dimension has to do with the evolution of the system of higher education, again from the eve of colonialism into contemporary times. The focus is on the social history of higher education, with an emphasis on issues of globalization and naturalization of models of the university, and the transformation of knowledge ideals in changing political and socio-economic contexts. The attempt is to study historically the impact of globalization of the university, on the one hand, and the formation of academic disciplines within the university and research institutes, on the other. And finally, a third area has to do with the history of science and technology in India, where in addition to looking at the philosophical, and social dimensions of the history of science education, research also focuses upon contexts, policies, and strategies of science communication and popularization.

Economics of Education: Students are introduced to the economic issues in education both from the perspectives of theory as well as applied research for analyzing the problems related to human resource development. Wider issues of education from the development economics perspective receive special attention. Major topics include concept and measurement of human capital, investment decisions in education, demand and supply of education, financing of education, university governance, applied economics of education, education and labour market, educational inequality, educational policy issues, migration of knowledge workers, trade in education services, etc.

The tentative scheme of teaching is as follows:

- a. A compulsory course in Research Methods in Social Sciences as applied to Educational Studies, focusing on quantitative and qualitative techniques of data collection.
- b. A compulsory course on Education in India: Social Science Perspectives focusing on various dimensions of the Indian education system.
- c. Introductory and advanced level courses in Economics of Education, Sociology of Education, History of Education and Psychology of Education are offered in the first and second semesters.
- d. A basket of optional courses are also offered in the second semester and students have to opt for one of them. Courses include Economic Policy in Education; Educational Thought in Modern India; Changing Conceptions of the Modern University; Education and Diversity in Multicultural Societies; Culture, Cognition and Mathematics, International Migration and Skilled Diasporas; Multilingualism and Education; Cultural Psychology; and Gender and Education.
- e. Those applying for Ph.D. should send a detailed research proposal of at least 3500 words, indicating the scope of the problem chosen, preliminary review in the area of literature, perspectives (theoretical and empirical) and methodology of proposed study. This is a mandatory requirement for those who qualify for the viva-voce examination.

The UGC accorded the Centre the status of Centre for Advanced Study (CAS). Earlier, the Centre was also accorded the status of Department of Special Assistance (DSA) and Assistance for Strengthening of Infrastructure for Humanities and Social Sciences (ASIHSS) by the UGC.

Vacancies are available in History of Education and Psychology of Education.

9. SCHOOL OF ARTS AND AESTHETICS

The School of Arts and Aesthetics offers post-graduate degree courses in the theoretical and critical study of cinema, and the visual and performing arts. It is one of the few places in India where these disciplines are offered in one integrated programme at the Masters level.

The study of the arts in recent years has been enriched by methods and insights from many fields, such as sociology, anthropology, linguistics, cultural studies, political science, economic history, ecology, semiotics and feminist studies. The School's outlook has been formulated in response to new ways of thinking about culture using a wide array of critical and theoretical approaches. During the course of their studies, students are introduced to a range of research methods that combine archival, ethnographic, theoretical and cultural approaches and are encouraged to create theory-practice interface. The faculty also encourages students to visit museums, exhibitions, and monuments and to attend festivals of theatre, film, dance and music. The school frequently hosts interactive sessions with eminent scholars and practitioners from within the country as well as from overseas.

Please bear in mind that SAA does not impart a practice based education in the arts. Our pedagogy is a theoretical and critical one that examines the histories, philosophies and critiques of the mentioned areas.

Resource Centre: Over the years the School has also built up a valuable and expanding library and archive of photographs, audio and video recordings. The use of multi media in teaching helps students maintain live contact with performance, visual art and film. Students are encouraged to undertake field trips, learn documentation methods, to curate exhibitions in the art gallery, to organize film festivals on specific themes and observe performance practices.

Disciplinary Streams:

Cinema Studies courses position the moving image as a force inhabiting a multi-media environment that includes film, television, video, and digital cultures. While film, as a powerful experience of 20th century modernity, continues to be an important scholarly focus, we also see it as a gateway to a broader field of the moving image complex. Our courses are structured to offer students exposure to a wide range of issues such as the sensory experience of moving image technologies; the stylistic and aesthetic dimension of diverse media forms; the political and cultural evaluation of audio-visual representations; and the infrastructures of media production, circulation, and exhibition. Students are encouraged to think conceptually and critically about global media cultures along with a special focus on India.

Theatre and Performance Studies offers a diverse spectrum of courses covering the history, theory and practice of theatre, dance, music and performance, both within India and across the world. Introductory courses are offered alongside a wide range of optional courses in music and dance. Covering a vast timeframe from 'living traditions' of rural performances in India and bhakti to the cutting-edge developments in political theatre, gender, globalization, and performance art, the Department is committed to studying theatre and performance both within established traditions of the stage, as well as in relation to the immediacies and contradictions of public culture at national and global levels.

Visual Studies: The visual studies courses address “high” art forms as well as the larger visual field of popular culture and visual practices. The majority of visual studies courses encourage a critical engagement with aspects of Indian visual culture (including shastric and aesthetic theories of Indian art, ancient sculpture, medieval temple architecture, Mughal and Rajput painting, 19th and 20th century popular culture, photography, modern and contemporary art in India and elsewhere) in the light of cutting-edge research and theoretical developments in art history, visual studies, history, literary theory, philosophy, aesthetics, ecology and sociology. Theoretically-oriented and cross-cultural courses take up issues such as the relationship between methods, materials and meanings in art, narrative strategies in art, and the history and politics of art institutions, particularly museums, in the creation of canons of art.

PROGRAMMES OF STUDY

The School runs three Ph.D. programmes in Cinema Studies, Theatre and Performance Studies and Visual Studies.

The Special Centre for the Study of North East India (SCSNEI) at JNU was established in the year 2018. Earlier it was functioning as a university-level Programme under the name, North East India Studies Programme. SCSNEI is conceived with the purpose to build a corpus of academic works on North East India. It aims at a holistic understanding of the region by bringing together different epistemic perspectives into a platform with a strong commitment to multi-disciplinary research.

SCSNEI provides a common platform for researchers in the areas of humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, and other allied disciplines, whose works are directly or indirectly linked to the studies on North East India and its neighbouring countries.

At present, SCSNEI focuses on areas of study, such as social change, religion and statecraft, economic development and livelihood practices, conflict, peace and security studies, borderland studies, cultural studies, development studies, resistance studies, political ecology and environmental studies, transnationalism and borderland economy, print culture, ancient Indian culture and archaeology, aesthetics and performance studies, biodiversity, traditional medicinal practices, performing arts and folklores, and oral traditions. Students and researchers are encouraged to engage with local, marginal, and regional experiences across North East India and its neighboring countries, and work toward the development of a new frontier of knowledge. Besides, conducting in-depth regionally and nationally relevant research works, researchers are expected to develop a commitment to judiciously apply the freshly acquired knowledge.

17. CENTRE FOR THE STUDY OF LAW AND GOVERNANCE

The manifold agendas of public policy and legal reform in India remain impoverished in the absence of substantial research in many areas that impact the everyday life of Indian citizens. Since its inception, the Centre for the Study of Law and Governance has initiated a new interest in examining how practices of governance get stabilised through law and how these practices open law to further contestation. The Centre adopts a multidisciplinary approach to framing research and teaching on the relationship between law and governance. The study of governance, in its various forms and at different sites, is central to several contemporary issues: the reform of public institutions and public law; the creation and establishment of procedures and rules that lead to greater efficiency, transparency, and accountability; and the challenge of making governance more inclusive and participatory through the strengthening of democracy and civil society. The Centre’s interdisciplinary focus draws on critical social science approaches in its attempt to explore how practices of law and governance are embedded in political, economic, social and historical processes; how practices of law and governance are dispersed over various sites ranging from the government, bureaucracy, judiciary, community and family; the socio-legal processes that deter or provide access to justice; and notions of governmentality, sovereignty and rights in specific politico-jural regimes. The normative ideals of justice, equity and freedom inflect the Centre’s critical interrogations of existing institutions and practices of law and governance. It is in this spirit that, while the Centre’s academic programme produces scholarly research in these areas, it also seeks to translate theory into practice by initiating debate, sharing research and providing a platform for dialogue between the academy, government, civil society and international agencies. In almost two decades since it came into existence the Centre for the Study of Law and Governance has developed at least three attributes that make it a distinctive part of the intellectual landscape. First, the Centre is explicitly inter-disciplinary, as evidenced by the diverse academic trainings of its faculty and its student body as well as in the teaching and research programme it has fostered. Second, the Centre has developed a reputation as a location where academic rigour can be meshed with reflection on policy and advocacy. Third, the Centre has become a focal point for understanding the links between the law and governance in practice. The ongoing research by the faculty and research students, a working paper series published by CSLG, an active seminar program and annual lectures by distinguished guests mark the other activities of the Centre. CSLG offers Ph.D. programme in Law and Governance.

PROGRAMMES OF STUDY: The Centre offers admission to Ph.D. programme.

The PhD programme is marked by its

- multi-disciplinary orientation in both course design and teaching plan;
- substantive academic content;
- distinctiveness when compared to available courses in other Indian Universities; and
- coherence as a programme of study with a policy-orientation.

The objectives of the Programme include the following:

- To provide an interdisciplinary perspective on the study of law and governance, by introducing the basic concepts, debates and the now extensive literature on governance and legal issues, emanating from the disciplines of political science, economics, public administration/public policy, sociology and jurisprudence.
- To equip students with the skills necessary to undertake research in areas of public policy, including a special focus on the legal implications of these issues, by developing their expertise in these diverse disciplinary areas, and so to enable a more complex and multi-faceted approach to issues of governance, public policy and law.
- To acquaint the qualified practitioner—policy-maker, civil servant, lawyer or NGO worker—with the major issues in this area.

All admissions to the PhD programme will be made through the JRF route. Those who have qualified the UGC-JRF examination are eligible to apply and final selection will be made through an interview. For the interview, candidates must prepare a 1,000-word research proposal with a bibliography. The candidate will be questioned on her/ his domain knowledge, work experience and proposed research project.

Social Science is growing into and developing an understanding of technology and natural science which can bring human safety and sustainable development. This objective requires transdisciplinary interaction, understanding and knowledge. The universe is one holistic habitat for humanity to survive. It may also be man's last habitat if we continue to allow the magnitude, frequency and recurrence of disasters to increase. In consideration of this objective the Special Centre for Disaster Research aims to build upon an appropriate relationship between social sciences, ICT and geospatial sciences on one hand and between the government and academic research on the other hand. The objective of teaching and research in disaster studies is to understand how disasters affect development, national resources and human and nonhuman lives. It also highlights the need for ecologically sensitive land use policies through GIS mapping and demarcation of fragile ecological areas. The centre looks into the new areas of information and communication research (ICT), Artificial Intelligence and preparedness to disasters, ecosystem and communities, smart cities and urban development. The research would also define the parameters of scientific preparedness, technology of mitigation and institutional accountability. Much of disaster prevention is about transparency, accountability, constitutional and environmental law which are helped through a basic understanding of geospatial sciences, Computational intelligence and community resilience. Those who are ready for a more versatile and contemporary thought processes are encouraged to apply.

21. SPECIAL CENTRE FOR SYSTEMS MEDICINE

Systems Medicine is a modern interdisciplinary branch of science that combines disease biology, systems biology including genomics, transcriptomics, proteomics, metabolomics, metabonomics, culturomics, immunomics, regulomics, phenomics, computational biology, high throughput data analysis, integrated with biobanking and animal studies to provide a comprehensive understanding of various aspects of disease studies.

The classical medicine approach lacks mechanistic understanding of molecular and cellular networks and pathology in almost every disease area. Most of the time, diagnosis and understanding of a particular disease is based on a reductionist model of a single or a few molecules. The key unmet need is to connect underlying molecular descriptors using large patient cohorts for better understanding of disease prevention, prediction, diagnosis and treatment.

Programme of Study

(a) PhD (Systems Medicine)

A limited number of scholars will be admitted to PhD programme. The courses are offered to make a strong foundation in systems medicine. The credit courses will be divided in first two semesters of the programme that include both basic and applied aspects. The second semester will mark the beginning of hands-on training in various aspects and techniques in systems medicine. In no case, a research scholar is allowed to repeat any course either in case of failure or for improving the grades. The programme being interdisciplinary, the research scholar will work under the joint supervision of faculty members.

Salient Features of Teaching and Training Programme

The competitive and vibrant PhD programme in Systems Medicine embarks on creating a robust academic research foundation in the following cutting-edge areas:

- i. Advances in systems biology and biological data
- ii. Molecular basis of human diseases
- iii. Advances in genomics and transcriptomics
- iv. Advances in proteomics and metabolomics
- v. Advances in immunomics and pathomics
- vi. Ethics in research, regulatory compliances, IPR and entrepreneurship

In addition, students admitted to the SCSM PhD program shall be trained in the following areas:

- i. Research methodology and lab techniques
- ii. Research manuscript writing and editing
- iii. Critical analysis and presentation of research output
- iv. Writing and defending research proposals

SCSM faculty members' laboratories are well equipped with state-of-the-art facilities for the cutting-edge research in the area of systems medicine. Additionally, the campus houses Central Instrument Facilities and Advanced Instrumentation Research Facility.

The interview of the candidates will be conducted by the Admission Committee of the Special Centre, where the candidates are required to discuss their research interest/area through a presentation. The competence of the candidate to undertake the proposed research; the suitability of the research topic/area at the Special Centre; and the potential of the proposed research to contribute new/additional knowledge, etc will be considered.
